WILLIAMSBURG, July 8, 1879. Editors Dispatch: I am alraid I wrote you a very silly and enthusiastic note this morning. About an hour after it was too fate for me to arrest my communication I placed the fancied armorial bearings on the pewser plates under a strong magnifying glass, and am now convinced, much to my chagrin, that it is nothing but a trade-mark after all. As the word "Homa" has at the end a distinct S, as revealed by the glass, why may there not be a T at the beginning, thus making Thomas, and the letters below, with the addition of a few others, might form the sirname of the manufacturer? I feel greatly disappointed and mortifled that I should have troubled you in this matter. Pray excuse me. Very respecifully, CYNTHIA B. T. COLEMAN.

A Question or Two Answered.

RICHMOND, July 10, 1879. Editors Dispatch: I hope you will not so serious a matter when I tell you I think I have solved the mystery of Mrs. Coleman's archaic find in the Williamsburg

The "Homa" which "stumps" (vide Pickwick Papers) you is evidently a part of the name Thomas, and my conjecture is that there were four brothers "Bettergood" engaged in the same business and establish ment in London-three of whom died, and the survivor adopted the trade-mark for bis ware, "Thomas Bettergood"-"Three

In this solution I call upon the great antiquarian dispewter Brock to stand by me. Yours respectfully, THEO. P. MAYO.

RICHMOND, July 9, 1879. Editors Dispatch: I frequently see allusions made in the papers to "the shipping point" of gold—that is, gold is above or below the shipping point, or near the shipping point. Will you please inform a constant reader what is "the shipping point of gold," and oblige The shipping point is not a fixed price, but is the price at which on any given day at pays to ship gold.

Little Johnny's Talk About Frogs. Dephants, Bears, and Other Wild Animals.

There was a frog and a ephalent, and the ephalent it sed to the frog: - Were wude you be if I wude step onto TOU?" weighs, and be wise enough to avoid him. The frog it said :

"You must be a mity big fool if you think such an act as that would make me go away." The el halent sed he ment wot wude become of the frog, which that a while and then sed, the frog did: "Well, I won't deny that if you done it a purpose, and bore on as hard as you cude, it would make me hoppin mad."

Then the ephalent made a figger 8 out of his probuscus, which is their way to smile, and wocked a way like he was tickled to death, but when I tickle Missy, that's my sister's nose with a grass while she was asleep she snoze and rub'd it with her for-Sager, and her feets is ticklish, too, on their bottoms. Mister Pitchel, that's the preacher, be

One time a frog and a hop tode they met, and the frog sassed the hop tode cos it was clumsy, but the tode it sed: 'If you will come here on this flat stone, where we can start even, ile beat you jumping hi best bowels, where such exist, as they usually do Appe-2 out of 3.

"So they done it, and the first time tode it only just cleared the stone, but the frog et went up so hi that it hurt itself coming down, and cudn't jump no more at all, and the tode beet it the other 2 times." Marbles is the game for me; yes indeed,

Uni co enatch up; and tit, tat, to is mighty good fun, too, when I get three in a ro. And now I'le tell you a story about a bear. One day the bear he went among a Bock of sheeps and picked out a nice little Lam, and cot it, and the lam it said ba-ba! cos it knew it was a goin for to be et every little tiny bit up. But the bear took it up in his fore pos like it was a baby, and set it up full length and rocked it, and sed :

"There, there, never mind, my precious darlin, where does it hurt you?" But that lam kept a hollerin louder and louder, cos wile the bear was a smilin and singing hush a boy, he was a skaweezin titer and titer all the time. Bimeby the old ram be seen wot was up, and he dropt his head, the old ram did, and come up like he was shot out of a gun and let him have it, and doubled him up like he was a razor, and sent him a rollin over and over without any preshous darlin. And wen the bear had pulled hisself together again and shuk the dust out of his bair, he sed : "I have observed that lams tails was quicker lightnin, but I dident know they was powfuller, too."

Just then he seed how it was, for there stood the old ram holding down his head ready to let him have it again, and shaking it, like he sed: "That little shaver wudent make more than a mouthful for a fellow like you. I guess you better serve up the old man." But the bear wocked off a shakin hisn, too, much as to say : "I don't hanker after a dinner which goes against my stomach like that."

Men Who Make the World Better.

[Providence Journal.] "I haven't been in these here parts." observed a grizzly old gentleman at our shoul-der in Car 124, "for nigh on to twenty year 'til now, and I love to ride up and down in these ere cars to see if I can set my eyes on the face of an old friend. It does me good to see human faces, for I be-Heve there is something good behind 'em. Pm a forty-niner. I remember the time when I was five thousand miles from home, straight as the crow flies, without a red cent. I was hungry, thirsty, tired, miserable, and moneyless. 'Hello,' said a voice.
- Hello back,' said I, and then a young felfow came down the land, and he said, Old boss, how are ye?' 'Hearty,' said I, 'and dead broke.' Then the young fellow plunged his hand into his pocket and drew out as much as three hundred dollars in bright gold. 'Help yourself,' he said, and turned his bead away. "I knew you when I saw you only a dusty speck on the road. You gave me a drink and got me a doctor when I was threatened with the tremens, and there is nothing in the world too good for you,' I love to live my life over," continued the old Califormian, "because I see the noble in human zature all along the line. Let 'em say what they please, there is such a thing as principle among men, and there are lots of us that try to live up to it." As the car stopped on a switch he stepped off and stretched himself under an elm in a numerous daisy field, beaming upon the world at large approvingly over his gold-bowed
